

Morningstar Analysis Jon Hale, Sr. Consultant 07-15-2009

Portfolio Manager

Michael L. Avery, since January 1997. BS Univ. of Missouri, MBA Saint Louis Univ. Avery has been in the investment industry since 1978. He joined the firm in 1981. Ryan Caldwell, since January 2007. BBA Southwest Texas State. Caldwell joined the firm in 2000.

Basic Characteristics

This is a flexible asset allocation fund that invests globally in stocks, bonds, cash, and precious metals. The managers take a top-down view, assessing the global economic environment to determine their asset allocation, then making their security selections based on the best opportunities they find in each market. The portfolio can change substantially over time, as economic conditions and opportunities within market sectors dictate. In 2002, for example, about two thirds of the portfolio was in U.S. bonds; at the end of 2004, U.S. (38%) and foreign stocks (31%) dominated the portfolio and the thematic emphasis was on Asia.

Strengths

The fund's A share class beats the S&P 500 over the trailing three, five, and 10 years and ranks highly in its category for those trailing periods. The firm has an experienced management team.

Issues

The fund's highly changeable portfolio makes it difficult to use in an asset allocation strategy and the fund should be more considered more of a satellite rather than a core strategy.

A fund's Morningstar category assignment is based on averaging its portfolios for the preceding three years.

Investment return and principal value will fluctuate, and it is possible to lose money by investing. The Fund allocates from 0-100% of its assets primarily among stocks, bonds, and short-term instruments, across domestic and foreign securities. International investing involves additional risks, including currency fluctuations, political or economic conditions affecting the foreign country, and differences in accounting standards and foreign regulations. These risks are magnified in emerging markets. With regards to fixed income securities in which the fund may invest, these are subject to interest rate risk and, as such, the net asset value of the fund may fall as interest rates rise. Because the Fund may concentrate its investments, the Fund may experience greater volatility than an investment with greater diversification. Investing in physical commodities, such as gold, exposes the Fund to other risk considerations such as potentially severe price fluctuations over short periods of time and storage costs that exceed the custodial and/or brokerage costs associated with the Fund's other holdings. These and other risks are more fully described in the Fund's prospectus.
